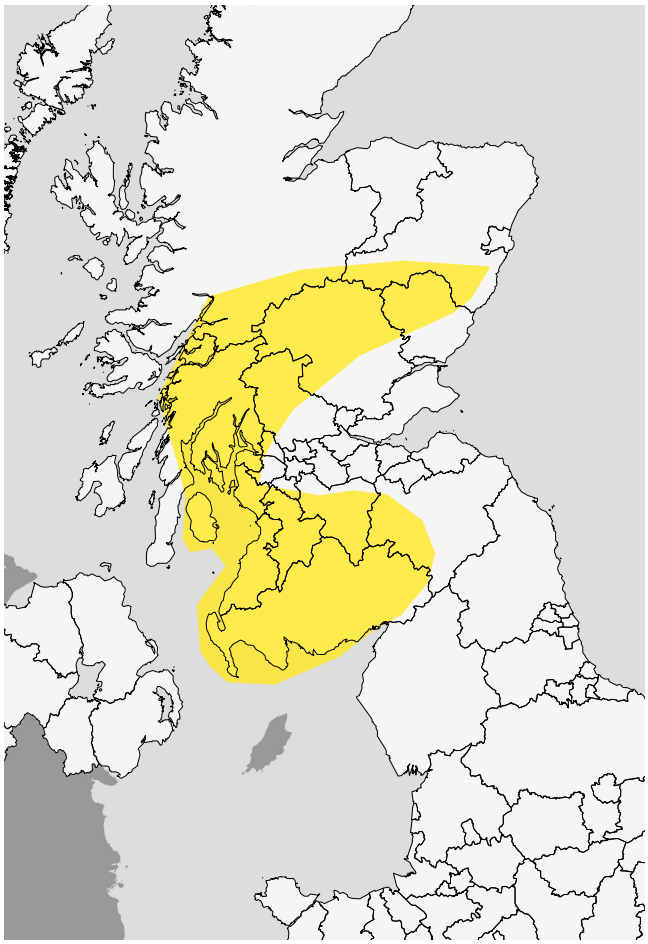
Yellow warning
Rain

Between
04:00 Sun 24 Sep 2023 and
23:59 Sun 24 Sep 2023



Persistent and heavy rain expected through Sunday, leading to some flooded roads and a small chance of property flooding

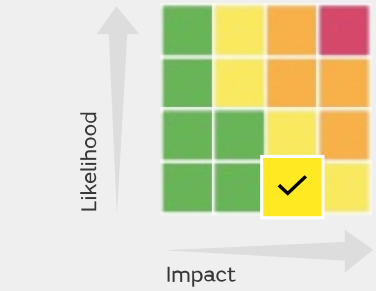
What to expect

- Floodwater, particularly in fast flowing areas, will pose a very small danger to life
- There is a small chance that homes and businesses could be flooded, causing damage to some buildings
- There is a small chance that some communities will become cut off by flooded roads
- Delays or cancellations to rail services are possible, and possibly some disruption to travel on roads with difficult driving conditions and a small chance of road closures

Further details

Rain arriving later Saturday and persisting overnight into Sunday will continue to build up through the course of Sunday, heaviest and most persistent over a number of higher ground areas of Scotland. By the time the rain begins to ease late Sunday, and overnight into Monday, turning more showery from the west, many places are expected to have received 30-50mm of rain, whilst some places, most likely south-west facing hills, could see 80-120mm over the course of 24-36 hours.

It will also become increasingly windy through Sunday, with gusts of 50-60mph on coasts and over high ground.



Very low likelihood of medium impacts
